SHARKVILLE

FRIDAY JULY 25 10P^E_P

It's truly amazing to witness the precision and prowess of a great white shark in action. As formidable as they are, scientists believed great whites only hunted during the day because of poor eyesight...until they got to Sharkville, a shark-infested area just off the southern coast of Africa. While on a six-year study of great whites, shark expert Ryan Johnson made the discovery of a lifetime — these massive predators hunting seal at night. In this high-definition special, Ryan sets out to capture his revolutionary findings on camera. Challenged with pointing a night vision camera at just the right time and place, Ryan puts together an astute plan to get his shot. Now, for the first time on film, witness the remarkable sight of massive great white sharks breaching on a kill in the dark of night.
